Clerk of Draft Board Dies

ROLAND T. FULLER, SR.

Roland T. Fuller, 48, Dies Suddenly While Driving

Coroner's Verdict Awaits Autopsy; Deceased Was Chief Clerk of Draft Board

Roland T. Fuller, Sr., 48, of 55 Lafayette avenue, chief clerk of the Kingston draft board, and a veteran of the World War, died suddenly, presumably of a heart attack, while driving his car on Railroad avenue, about 10 o'clock this morning.

Coroner Henry A. Lamouree of Saugerties, who was called, said that he had ordered an autopsy performed, and that he would withhold his verdict until the result of the autopsy was known.

Mr. Fuller was on a three-day vacation from his duties at the local draft board office in the Central Post Office building, and had driven out Thomas street and turned into Railroad avenue, when he was seized.

He pulled his car into the curb and shut off the ignition switch, and as he coasted into the curb near the Central Bus Terminal, (Continued on Page Three)

Two Senators Suggest Roosevelt Make Overtures for Peace in Europe

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Amid administration and congressional efforts to give more aid to Great Britain and Russia, two senators—Adams (D-Col.) and Nye (R-N.D.)—suggested today that President Roosevelt tender his good offices to bring about peace in Europe.

"I am one of the minority group which believes that the President might offer to help in bringing about peace," Adams told reporters.

"While Germany might say that we would be pretty poor peace-makers because of our aid to Britain, we could advise all the nations involved that we did not wish to dictate the treaty terms but merely would help in any way we could."

Nye asserted that Mr. Roosevelt

Hitler Is Piecing Together New Plan To Provide Peace

Signs Are That Fuehrer Would End War Before Winter Covers East; Idea Held Futile

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT (Freeman Special News Service)

It is entirely likely that any trial armistice balloons which Adolf Hitler has wafted toward Russia in the course of his Moscow offensive were merely oblique harbingers of new attempts to make a peace with Britain before the winter snows blanket the battle field in the east.

Hitler wants extermination of the Red armies and complete conquest of Russia-in-Europe, not compromise. It is only necessary (Continued on Page Nine) undoubtedly could 'make a substantial contribution toward peace' and added that "if our present foreign policy is followed to its ultimate end, we probably won't have a nation left in the world which is friendly to us."

Both President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, however, have declared that their countries would not consent to any peace which involved a continuation of Hitlerism.

With the new $5,985,000,000 lend-lease appropriation safely through the House, leaders turned their attention to hastening that aid-to-Britain measure through the Senate, and to obtaining prompt enactment of a neutrality revision bill permitting the arming of American merchant ships, as urged by President Roosevelt.

Although a substantial number of congressmen favor broadening the armed-ship measure to eliminate the present prohibition against American ships traveling into belligerent ports or designated combat zones, the House foreign affairs committee voted last night to consider only the repeal of the section which forbids arming merchant ships, limit the hearings to two days, and hold them behind closed doors.

President Is at Top and Under Him Are 25 Agencies Which Handle Orders

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Like a giant holding company with policy-making, financing and planning agencies at the top and a host of operating units underneath to carry out orders—that's the nation's ever-expanding defense machine.

President Roosevelt is the one-man top holding company. His orders go forth through a variety of subordinate holding companies and interlocking directorates down to the operating agencies. When he does not do his own ordering, he delegates others to take over authority.

All told, there are about 25 permanent and emergency agencies in the gigantic machine—an alphabetical line-up never dreamed of in early New Deal days.

Most of these agencies for all practical purposes are directly under the executive office of the president. About half of them are technically under the office of emergency management (O. E. M.), another White House adjunct, but this agency serves merely as a liaison or coordinator between the President and a dozen emergency defense agencies.

With Wayne Coy, a young Indian, in charge, O. E. M. funnels information back and forth to save the President a lot of detail paper and telephone work.

Aside from the armed services and other regular departments and agencies, the most important cogs in the defense machine are the Lend-Lease Administration (L. L. A.), Supply, Priorities, and Allocations Board (S. P. A. B.), Economic Defense Board (E. D. B.), Office of Production Management (O. P. M.), and Office of Price Administration (O. P. A.).

Harry L. Hopkins is the big boss of L. L. A., get to be formally created as such. He is officially known as special assistant to the President on lend-lease business. He lives at the White House and is in almost constant touch with Mr. Roosevelt, where American arms can do the most good at a given moment and what and how much can be spared for overseas aid.

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., former O. P. M. priorities chief, is under Hopkins as lend-lease administrator. He recently was given the power to sign the President's name on lend-lease allocations.

Hopkins is a good example of how the "interlocking directorate" feature of a holding company system is adapted to national defense. Along with his L. L. A. duties he is a member of the all-important S. P. A. B.

In fact, all S. P. A. B. members, its chairman, and its executive director have other major defense duties which makes it one of the top "holding companies."

Wallace Has Big Job
Created recently to overcome confusion arising from overlapping duties of the O. P. M. and the now defunct office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply (O. P. A. C. S.), S. P. A. B. is headed by Vice President Wallace, who attends cabinet meetings and also presides over the Economic Defense Board. The other members are War Secretary Simon, Navy Secretary Knox, O. P. M. Directors William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, and Leon Henderson, O. P. A. director.

Donald M. Nelson, head of the O. P. M. priorities division, is S. P. A. B.'s executive director.

S. P. A. B. is a general policy board which determines the total supplies needed for both lend-lease and domestic purposes, amounts on hand and to be produced, how much should go to help Axis foes and how much should be kept at home. It also decides priorities for defense and civilian needs.

Its policies are carried into effect by O. P. M. and the latter's own sub-operating units. The economic defense board, like L. L. A., is outside the O. E. M. coordinate arrangement and deals directly with the President. Besides Wallace, its members are cabinet officers—war, navy, state, treasury, justice, agriculture and commerce. Its executive director is Milo Perkins, a former Texas jute bag manufacturer.

This board plans measures designed to strengthen the nation's economic relations with friendly powers and steps to block economic aid to Axis powers. It determines over-all estimates of materials and commodities required for export, exclusive of lend-lease (Continued on Page Nine)

Verdict Is Withheld In Fatality

Coroner Awaits Autopsy Before Making His Announcement in Allaben Crash

Man Is Not Held

Charles Krom, Allaben, Is Struck by Truck on Route 28

Coroner Henry A. Lamouree of Saugerties announced this morning that he was withholding his verdict on the death of Charles Krom, 53, of Allaben, who was injured fatally when hit by a car on Route 28 about 10:30 o'clock last night. Arthur Wright of Rhinebeck, driver of the truck which struck Krom, was not held on any charge following the accident.

The result of the autopsy, it was announced by Coroner Lamouree, will not be known until late today. It is believed, however, that Krom's death was due largely to a skull fracture.

Troopers Ray Dunn and F. R. Maish, who investigated the accident, learned that Krom, driving a truck, had come from the Fox Hollow road to the intersection of Route 28. Indications were that at the junction he turned his machine left and then stepped out upon the road.

As Krom was standing near his truck, the officer report, the car driven by Arthur Wright of Rhinebeck, attempted to pass between the truck and the guard rail along the road, apparently at about the time Krom stepped from his truck.

Krom was struck by the front end of the Wright car and was carried about 40 feet before the driver was able to stop.

Dr. Charles A. Quinn of Poughkeepsie was called, but Krom had died prior to his arrival at the scene. Coroner Lamouree was then notified at Saugerties.

The officers learned that Wright is employed at Vestal, near Binghamton. He was accompanied by Helen Wright, also of Rhinebeck, but not related to the driver.

The accident victim was the brother of Harry Krom, candidate for town superintendent of highways in the town of Shandaken. He resided with his father and mother at Allaben.

Schoonmaker Gets Poughkeepsie Post

Former Stone Ridge Man Promoted From Auburn Dairy League Plant

Percy G. Schoonmaker, formerly of Stone Ridge, a graduate of Kingston High School and the Delhi Agricultural College, who has been manager of the Auburn plant of the Dairymen's League for eight and one half years, will leave at the end of the month for a position as manager of the league's Poughkeepsie plant.

Mr. Schoonmaker is the son of Mrs. Irving Schoonmaker of Stone Ridge and the late Irving Schoonmaker.

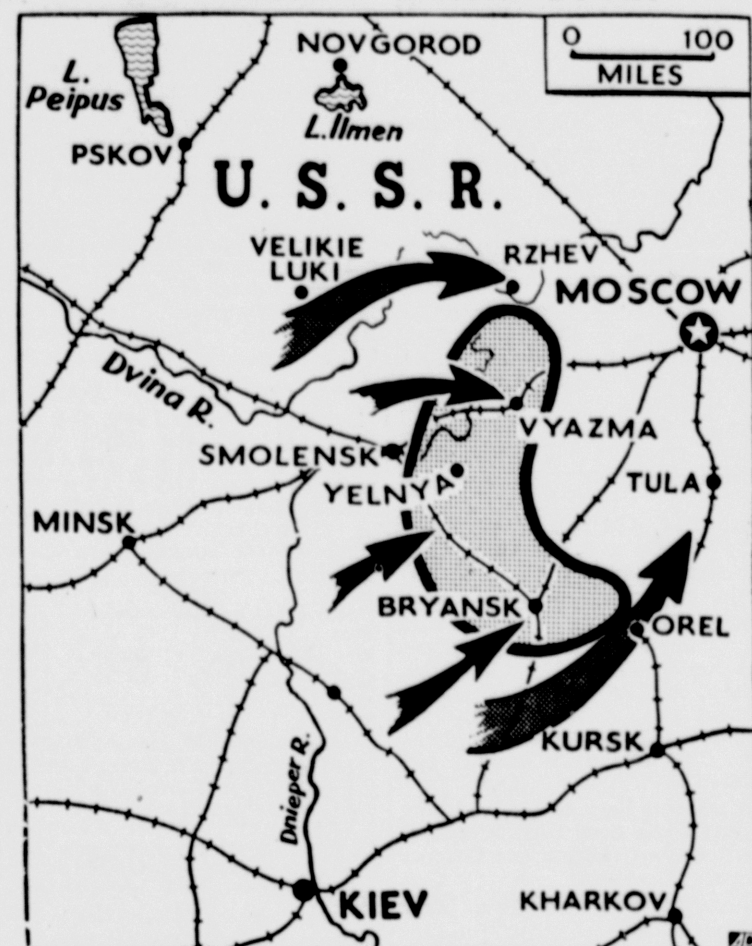

The change marks a promotion for Mr. Schoonmaker as the Poughkeepsie plant he will manage is the second largest operated by the league. It supplies milk products for the whole Hudson Valley from New York city to Catskill and Hudson.

Before going to Auburn, he was in charge as league representative in Ogdensburg. While in Auburn he was noted for his services to the community as a civic leader. Mr. Schoonmaker is a former president of the Kiwanis Club. He is now director of the Finger Lakes Association, president of the Trinity Church Brotherhood and a Y. M. C. A. camp director. The former Stone Ridge resident also was secretary of the Cayuga World's Fair committee and has been an active worker in the Community Chest and similar movements in Auburn.

'Innocent Party' May Be Absolved
Responsibility Law Might Be Changed at Albany

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP)—A plan to modify New York's new financial responsibility law by relieving the "innocent party" from its provisions may go before the 1942 Legislature.

A conference of interested persons yesterday heard Governor Lehman call for correction of several "weaknesses" in the measure he said he signed as a necessary step toward greater highway safety.

State Tax Commissioner Mark Graves said conferees favored relieving the innocent of the new law's provisions after vindication in court action. They also agreed the commissioner of motor vehicle should not be responsible for determining the innocence or guilt of motorists in accidents.

As now worded, the law requires forfeiture of the license of any motorist "involved" in an accident causing more than $25 damage until he posts security to cover any resulting judgment and proof of further financial responsibility. Attending the conference were legislators, state department officials, insurance underwriters and members of motor clubs, bar associations, boards of trade and the Grange.

Reds Make Appeal for Diversion

Soviet Would Have Anglo Army Attack Nazis in Western European Regions

'Danger Is Great'

Red Star Says Nazis Have Superiority in Numbers

(By The Associated Press)

Great masses of Russian reserves, warmly dressed for winter action and bolstered by new tanks and fast planes, were reported moving up to the front today as Gen. Fedor von Bock's German armies pressed on over blood-soaked battlefields in a steadily growing threat to Moscow.

As the war ended its 16th week, the Russians appealed more urgently to Great Britain to create a diversion by invading western Europe. Thus Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, declared:

"Now the main forces of the German army are chained in the east, creating most favorable conditions for activation of other fronts of the anti-German coalition."

Afield, Russia's sorely-pressed armies fell back to a shorter defense front during the night and were reported to have slowed down the 10-day old German drive on Moscow, but Soviet dispatches admitted a grave new danger had arisen in the Vyazma sector, 125 miles west of the U.S.S.R. capital.

Danger Is Great

"The danger is great," said Red Star, conceding for the moment at least that the Germans had numerical superiority in the all-important conflict on the central front.

German reports asserted that hundreds of thousands of Russian corpses littered the battlefield around Bryansk, 220 miles southwest of Moscow.

Red troops attempting to escape encirclement by creeping through German lines at night were said to have been mowed down in great numbers.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters reported that huge-scale slaughter of Russian forces trapped in the Bryansk and Vyazma sectors was proceeding rapidly, while on the southern (Ukraine) front, the high command said annihilation of Soviet troops north of the Sea of Azov was approaching completion.

If true, this would pave the way for a direct German assault on the Don river port of Rostov, gateway to the vital Caucasian oil fields.

In the north, around Leningrad, the German high command said 11 Russian attempts to break out of the old Czarist capital failed yesterday and that 28 super-heavy Soviet tanks were destroyed in three days of fighting.

Soviet front-line dispatches said the bloody struggle on the central front was mounting in intensity, with fresh German divisions attacking incessantly in three main sectors—Vyazma, Bryansk, and Orel, 220 miles south of Moscow.

Unconfirmed Berlin reports said the Germans were also driving on the Volga river city of Rzhev, 135 miles northwest of Moscow, and had captured Tula railway junction, 105 miles due south of the Soviet capital—thus drawing a complete half circle around Moscow.

Thousands of Red army reserves were reported moving up to the front in a steady stream, but the Russians made no attempt to conceal the darkness of the hour.

After initial success in stemming German attacks around Vyazma, inflicting heavy losses on the invaders, the Russians conceded their lines had been torn by deep wedges in that defense zone.

In the Bryansk sector, where the Russians said yesterday the Nazis were advancing "over mountains of German corpses," outflanked Red divisions withdrew to new positions during the night under cover of heavy rear-guard actions.

The depth of the Soviet withdrawal was not disclosed, but presumably they fell back to a shorter, straighter line between Vyazma and Tula, along the Oka and Ugra rivers.

"Destruction of forces encircled in the vicinity of the Bryansk and Vyazma is progressing rapidly." (Continued on Page Three)

Roland Fuller Dies in Automobile

his car struck the rear of the taxi of William Dohnken, parked at the curb, and then the car ran part way up on the sidewalk before it came to a stop.

Crash Is Heard
The crash was heard by one of the drivers of a Greyhound bus that had pulled into the terminal, and the driver saw Fuller slump down into his seat.

The driver called to Frank Roe, owner of the bus terminal, and he ran over to the Fuller car, and when he saw Fuller slumped down behind the wheel he ran back to the bus office and called the Conner ambulance.

In the meantime a trained nurse, who was a passenger on the bus, made a quick examination of Fuller and said that she felt no pulse and believed him dead.

When the ambulance arrived at the terminal Mr. Fuller was placed in the ambulance and rushed to the Kingston Hospital where he was pronounced dead by Dr. Kenneth LeFevre. Dr. LeFevre said Mr. Fuller died before he reached the hospital.

Served During War
Mr. Fuller, who served during the World War, was appointed chief clerk of the local draft board when it was first organized and had held that position ever since. His fellow workers in the draft office said that they did not know that Mr. Fuller had been afflicted with heart trouble.

Mr. Fuller is survived by his wife and two children, Miss Natalie Fuller and Roland T. Fuller, Jr., who recently enlisted in the U. S. Navy.

Coast Is Searched

Auckland, N. Z., Oct. 11 (AP)—A bomb-laden plane in liaison with an armed posse of 200 men combed the wild west coast of South Island today in search for a fugitive farmer who has shot to death six of his pursuers and outwitted the rest in a four-day chase. Yesterday he killed a postman and today the fifth and sixth victims died of wounds he inflicted.

Russians Advance Men to Battle

Hitler's field headquarters reported.

"Desperate attempts by the opponent to break through collapsed in the face of attacks by German troops everywhere. The number of prisoners and booty is growing steadily."

Men Won't Be Home

Nevertheless, German newspapers told the people that the men at the front would not be home this winter, which seemed to indicate that Hitler's description of the Moscow offensive as "the last great, decisive battle this year" did not mean an end to the war with Russia.

"The campaign goes on," said the Berlin newspaper Lokai Anzeiger.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Winston Churchill received a demand by a group of British students for "immediate armed action to relieve pressure on our Russian allies."

There was still no hint of a British expeditionary force going to invade the continent, but restless Britons were encouraged by a war office announcement of the formation of a corps of shock troops skilled in sea landings—called "commandos"—and London newspapers freely asserted they would "one day storm enemy beaches."

Meanwhile, the R.A.F. kept up its smashing blows at the Reich's war industries, with more than 200 bombers attacking the Ruhr and Rhineland, the docks at Rotterdam, Ostend, Dunkerque and Bordeaux. United States-built havocs participated in other raids on German-occupied airdromes in Belgium and France.

Planes Raid Britain

Only a few German night raiders attacked Britain but the government said they caused some damage and a small number of casualties.

In the western hemisphere, the two-day-old Panama government received the support of representatives of nearly all political parties.

It was said there was a possibility the new president, Ricardo Adolfo de la Guardia, might call the Panama national assembly to approve his administration or might dissolve the assembly and call a general election for a successor to exiled President Arnulfo Arias.

New British Plane

Powerful Fighter

Carries Four Cannons and Six Machine Guns.

LONDON—Details of the armament, performance and equipment of Britain's Beau fighters have just been released. It is a large machine—with a range of 1,500 miles—and it has four cannons and six machine guns to make it the most powerful armed fighting plane in the world.

The Beaus have been in use here against German night raiders and also in the Middle East for daylight operations, yet nothing has been said until now as to what makes these planes the pride of the royal air force. Just about all that was known about them appeared in communications where it was most often reported that opposing Nazi aircraft had been blown to bits in mid-air after a couple of bursts of fire.

The Beau fighter is all-metal, its weight is 21,000 pounds loaded, while the nominal top speed is 330 miles an hour at 14,000 feet.

The cannons are 20-millimeter Hispano-Suiza guns and the machine guns are Brownings. Doubt was expressed at first whether or not such a weight of armament could be carried by a fighter without sacrifice of maneuverability. Three Beau fighters gave a demonstration at a factory airport to show that they could take off on a short run, climb fast and carry out aerobatics, including diving, slow rolls and tight turns.

The Beau fighters possess unusually complete equipment. They have navigation, identification and formation flying lamps; landing flares, oxygen apparatus, a motion-picture camera mounting, fire extinguishers, first aid outfits and an axe. Emergency ratings are stowed aboard.

Hear Discussion On Evacuation of Metropolitan Area

Mayor C. J. Heiselman, accompanied by a number of members of the local National Defense Council attended a meeting called by Governor Lehman in the executive chambers in the State Capitol in Albany Thursday afternoon.

The meeting was called to discuss the establishment of evacuation centers outside the city of New York to care for children, mothers and physically handicapped persons from the metropolitan area should evacuation become necessary.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the New York State Council of Civilian Defense, of the Federal Office of Civilian Defense, by state, county and city officials and members of local defense councils in the Hudson valley area and was presided over by the governor.

A representative of the Children's Bureau, who had studied the evacuation of the children of London while in England some months ago described the procedure employed in England and some of the lessons learned in that country.

Mayor Heiselman offered a motion, which, after debate, was unanimously adopted by the meeting, that Governor Lehman be requested to appoint a committee composed of state, county, and city officials, whose duty it shall be to study the matter and develop a plan for the establishment of evacuation centers to care for the children of the New York city metropolitan area should it become necessary, by bombing or otherwise, to remove the children from that area.

The mayor stated today that the local defense council would not undertake a local survey to determine how many children could be cared for in Kingston until the governor's committee on evacuation had made its report and recommendations.

New Bridge Across Wallkill Is Completed

The new bridge across the Wallkill river in the village of New Paltz was recently completed. Work on the bridge was started by Contractor McKenna in the spring of 1940. Local men were employed for all carpentry work and constructing abutments, but it was necessary to import steel workers when the preliminary work was completed. On the west bank it was necessary to drive piles to make a suitable foundation for the abutment. Because of extreme cold in the fall of 1940 and due to difficulties which would be experienced in pouring concrete in low temperatures, work was halted. In the spring of this year work was resumed and the span was completed in a few weeks. The structure is 175 feet long and is considerably longer than the old bridge. The roadway has a floor of reinforced concrete. The bridge is on the same level and just north of the old structure. The change in location, although slight, necessitated the making of new approaches which were completed by the county. The old bridge was built in 1891 and replaced an older wooden covered bridge.

Classis of Ulster Missionaries

Hold 90th Annual Conference

The nineteenth annual conference of the Women's Missionary Union of the Classis of Ulster was held in the Gould Memorial Church, Roxbury, Wednesday, October 8. Two chartered buses and many private cars carrying members from all sections of Ulster county, made the trip.

The sessions started at 10:15, with Mrs. A. Noble Graham, president. Supporting Mrs. Graham, as president of the union, was Mrs. Matthew DeWitt and Mrs. R. Grant Johnson, first and second vice presidents, respectively.

Following the opening hymn, the devotions were conducted by the Rev. Glen W. Young, pastor of the Roxbury Church. The Rev. Mr. Young also extended a welcome to those assembled in behalf of the Women's Auxiliary of the church. Under annual business, Mrs. Harry Durling gave a brief report of the executive meetings held during the year. Mrs. Harry Ten Hagen, treasurer of the union, submitted her report, showing a balance of $14.16 in the general fund. In the absence of Miss Florence Relyea, corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. B. Dickinson called the roll of auxiliaries. Representatives were present from all of the 18 societies which comprise the union. Mrs. Dickinson also read brief reports sent in by the secretaries of the societies, all of which showed gratifying results of the year's work.

Mrs. Edgar Ellsworth, giving the message of the classical committee, said that although many hearts have been saddened by conditions abroad, missionaries being either recalled or sent from their fields and many of the boys being drafted, still all must endeavor to carry out the motto for the year, "Towering O'er the Wrecks of Time." She brought attention to the need of support and cooperation in local mission work, stating there were still a few churches in the Classis without missionary societies. Mrs. Ellsworth paid tribute to three of the great leaders who have passed on. Mrs. J. Graham, who served as president of the Domestic Board for five years, the Rev. William A. Worthington of Anville, Kentucky, called "The Shepherd of the Hills," and the Rev. Richard Harper, beloved worker in the Indian field.

A letter from the board was read by Mrs. A. Noble Graham, saying that although conditions had been critical in many of the stations, no lives had been sacrificed and much of the work had gone on as usual. The letter stated that the board is responsible for the support of 68 missionaries. It was urged that the Classis continue the same pledge for Mrs. Kuyper, who is now stationed in Stockton, Cal., working among the Japanese. All were asked to keep in mind the 50th anniversary of the Women's Board of Domestic Missions which will be held in the First Reformed Church, Albany, November 12.

Miss Geraldine Peters of the Fair Street Reformed Church, newly appointed classical representative of Young People's work, gave a short and earnest talk on the duties she was assuming. Her great wish was "that every church might have a Girls' League for Service."

Following a solo, "Come Ye Unto the Mountains of the Lord," sung by Miss Olive Elizabeth MacLaury, Mrs. W. K. Haysom gave "Echoes from Women's Assembly of General Synod," held in Holland, Mich., in June. Of particular interest was the report Mrs. Haysom gave of the workings of the commission on spiritual life. One of the outstanding accomplishments of this committee was the issuing of 4,000 copies of the personal inventory cards. These were distributed among missionary societies, teachers of Sunday schools for their pupils, prayer circles and spiritual life groups. These groups are functioning and increasing in number.

A panel discussion on stewardship was also a very instructive part of the program. Mrs. Graham presented a plea from the board for "a unity in prayer." It was requested that the Ulster Classis do on record to set aside 15 minutes each morning for prayer and Bible reading.

Mrs. John Van Ess, missionary from Arabia, gave the closing address of the morning session. Mrs. Van Ess said that wherever she went four questions were invariably asked her:

1. About the make-up of Arabia; 2. what do you do; 3. what has the war done to the work; 4. where is the world going to, what is happening to civilization and where is God. In answer to question one, Mrs. Van Ess spoke extensively of the political changes in Arabia. Although the Reformed missions in Amarah, Basrah, Kuwait, Bahrain and Muscat were scattered politically, she said they were united geographically and all stand united in their work for the Arabs.

As to the question "what do you do?" Mrs. Van Ess told of the starting of her work in Arabia as a teacher in the mission school at Basrah, where primary, middle grade and high school work was taught. The teaching received by the pupils was such as would fit them to lead a useful life among their own people. Mrs. Van Ess later took up work among the underprivileged children, who, for economic reasons, could not attend the government or mission schools. She spoke of the joy of working among these girls, their responsiveness and cooperation. Due to the fact that most of their learning must come from observation and what they hear, they have developed a retentive memory and are unusually clever in handicraft, especially in knitting.

The war, up until about a year ago, had done little to change things except to cause a slight rise in prices. However, since May there has been grave fears that the Axis powers would gain access to Iraq. She spoke of bullets coming so near the mission school that her husband and son heard the whistle of them. The Reformed mission school for boys in Basrah was the only one to reopen after the conflict and finish the school year. Mrs. Van Ess anticipated further trouble and expects to return to Arabia after her furlough. There is only one answer to question four, she said. Christianity is putting money in a bank that has never failed; nothing that it has done has ever been discredited. It is the only stable thing that is left. Mrs. Van Ess then asked, "what are you, as interested members, doing about it?" She urged all to "back up the Christian ideals."

Following the benediction by the Rev. Charles L. Palmer, a delicious luncheon was served by the ladies of the church. The afternoon session opened with a hymn, followed by prayer by the Rev. Paul Ammerman. The first speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Arthur Resch, representative of the Foreign and Domestic Boards. She spoke first of the Reformed Church, then of the Chinese prayer, "Lord revive Thy church, beginning in me." This year the Foreign Board in China will be celebrating their 100th anniversary. An additional $5,000, dedicated to the "David Abel Fund," will be used to extend the work in China. Because China has been pushed further and further into the interior the missionaries now have access to territory that they have been unable to work in before, due to banditry. One goal for the Chinese mission is to place a Bible in every home in Amoy.

In speaking of the Japanese situation, Mrs. Resch said the Japanese youth feel that because they enjoy the privileges of the government, they must fight for the government, but their heart is not in this war.

The domestic work this year will include a $5,000 memorial for the late Rev. W. A. Worthington to extend and strengthen the work pioneered by him 30 years ago in the Kentucky mountains. This sum will be used to buy two gospel ears for Sunday school work and other religious activities among the young people, equip a library with religious literature and buy some much needed material for Anville Institute.

Mrs. Resch urged investment in the youth of the country. She spoke of the increasing calls to the board for ministers to serve where defense work is going on. Many of the boys who are far away from home wish to be connected with the church. She said so spoke of the need to continue the sending of clothes to Europe, stating that 60 per cent of the Christian refugee children coming to America at one time was clothed in things sent by us. We were asked not to neglect India.

In closing, Mrs. Resch said she felt that this war was over there would be opportunity to do far greater missionary work than ever before. Both the Foreign and Domestic Boards closed their books this year without a deficit. In announcing the offertory, Gault's "Eye Hath Not Seen," sung by a trio, Miss Olive Elizabeth MacLaury, Mrs. Robert MacLaury and Mrs. Kenneth Preston, Mrs. Noble stated that at a recent Easter service all of the music had been written and sung by people in the Roxbury community. This fact had appeared in several newspapers throughout the country, even reaching to California. Mrs. Rudolph Gault was the accompanist for both the soloists in the morning and the trio in the afternoon.

Miss Edith Lowry, executive secretary of the Home Missions Council of North America, brought before the meeting the work being done by the missions among the migrants.

The Reformed Church started pioneering in this field 20 years ago. "It was not a new movement even then," said Miss Lowry, for it dates back to the children of Israel in Bible times. "People become migrants because they fear defeat. There are two types of migrants now, the farm or agricultural migrant and the defense migrant, who is comparatively new. Following are some figures given by Miss Lowry. In 1880 25 per cent of the farms in the U. S. were operated by tenant farmers and by 1914 this number had increased to 42 per cent. Since then, every year approximately 40,000 has been added to this number. By the mechanization of the farm and the defeat experienced by dust storms and soil erosion, these tenant farmers have been "traced out" as they expressed it and turned to the only thing left, the seasonal work of harvesting crops. There are five million farm and industrial migrants now uprooted from their homes and sent to different places and 10,000 in New York state alone. Miss Lowry went on to tell of the exploitation of labor contractors, the suffering of small children and babies being left alone to care for themselves while their parents are in the fields, the lack of hospitalization and doctors, the problems of education and religious opportunities, and many other conditions that the migrant has to endure.

She then gave in detail what both the government and the missions are doing to alleviate their hardships. While the government is meeting the housing problem by establishing camps in the more thickly populated sections, the mission workers follow up the migrants from harvest to harvest, setting up temporary centers where nurses can care for the children during the day and minister to the physical and spiritual needs of all. A challenge to Christian stewardship came when Miss Lowry told of a migrant who, with a wife and three children to support, gave a visiting pastor 99 cents to carry on his work. The sum constituted his tithe of three days work in a month. Miss Lowry closed with the warning that if the church does not reach the migrant, they are fertile soil for all the "isms."

The conference closed with a hymn and benediction. Next fall the conference will meet at the Bloomingdale Reformed Church.

The registering at the conference from the Kingston churches were: From Fair Street Reformed Church: Mrs. R. Grant Johnston, Miss Anna Searle, Mrs. F. M. Brink, Mrs. Mabel C. Among Chairmen at K. of C. Ball

Among the chairmen of the Knights of Columbus ball, which was held last evening at the municipal auditorium, were left to right, Thomas C. Lodge, chairman of patron tickets; Frank A. Reis, general chairman; Dean Hudson, leader of guest orchestra; Joseph J. Murphy, chairman of music committee; and Andrew T. Gilday, chairman of entertainment.

K. of C. Ball Pleases With Entertainment

Last evening marking the 23rd annual charity ball under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, completed the finishing touches to the opening of the fall and winter programs of the social season. A large audience took advantage of the excellent floor show and concert by Dean Hudson and his orchestra.

Thursday evening the orchestra played at V.M.I. in Lexington, Va., and arrived in Kingston yesterday afternoon. Their first piece, "You Know that I Know," set the tempo for the evening of lively scintillating tunes. The Dixie Debs, girl quartet, were introduced with the band's arrangement of "I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire." The members of the orchestra also comprise the a cappella choir, a group having worked together during college days at the University of Florida. Their contribution to the opening program was "Liebestraum." Other novelties were the playing of "Annie Laurie" as several of the famous orchestras would, and the presentation of the various instruments and their representations as used in the playing of the rumba, which led to the playing of "Siboney."

Frank Reis, chairman of the ball committee, welcomed the audience and spoke briefly of the charitable work which those attending were making possible. The master of ceremonies next introduced the Carr Sisters through the courtesy of the Cashin School of Dancing, who performed their dancing drill act. Kay and Kay thrilled the audience with their difficult feats of balancing and winton and Diane, tap dancers, were called back for encores to their infectious tapping to the swing melodies.

One of the most popular celebrities appearing was Bob Kennedy, blond romantic tenor, who will go to Hollywood soon. His singing was tone-rich, warmed with a buoyant personality, and encores included "Donkey Serenade," "Begin the Beguine," and salutes to the men in service.

Also outstanding was the juggling acts of Trixie who not only skillfully does the usual juggling of balls and plates but works with a large ball bouncing on her head. With the use of a short pipe held in her mouth she was able to catch the ball, thrown by members of the audience and balance it on the pipe. The program was brought to a close with Gautier's Steeplechase of dogs, ponies and monkey tricks.

Alternating with the guest orchestra for the dancing was Wendell Scherer's orchestra featuring Miss Jean Molyneux as soloist. The auditorium was decorated in blue and gold, the colors of the Knights of Columbus. The organization's shield was also used on a particularly fine one displayed on the stage amid soft colored lights and palms.

During the evening a group of flower girls under the supervision of Miss Estelle Brophy, sold roses. The girls were the Misses Mary Netter, Joan Straub, Rose and Nancy Muccio, Paula Goven, Eva Mae Richter, Kathryn White, Barbara Whelan, Helen and Joan Cahill, Doris and Joan Penaro, Dorothy Reis, Marlene Kelder, Anne Donovan, Betty McManus, Lorraine Gardner, Joan Enright, Lorraine Brockley, Ann Dittmar, Kathryn Lodge and Margaret Fey.

Thomas Cloonan had charge of the refreshments and he was assisted by Miss Anna Porsch, Miss Alice Schuler, Mrs. Nellie Devine and Mrs. Mary Doolan.

To Entertain Campaign Captains and Teams

The captains and their teams of the drive of the Ulster County Committee for Planned Parenthood will be entertained at tea by Mrs. Henry Wood at her home in Hurley on Wednesday afternoon October 15, at 3:30. At this time all final reports will be made.

The committee supports the Maternal Health Center at 562 Broadway where such an excellent health program this past year has made an outstanding contribution to the community. This project is supported solely by voluntary contributions and is of great importance to the well being of the county.

Hobby Show Lists Numerous Exhibits

Plans are being completed for the hobby and quilt exhibit sponsored by the Women's Service League of the First Presbyterian Church. The show is to be held in the Ramsey Memorial Hall, corner of Elmendorf street and Tremper avenue, Thursday, October 16, from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and beginning at 7 in the evening.

A large collection of interesting things has been acquired for this exhibit. The following is a list of some of the articles which will be displayed. Mrs. Ramon Diaz will exhibit a collection of rare and antique dolls. There are 146 dolls all collected in New York state, most of them in the Hudson Valley. There will also be art craft by Mrs. William McVey and her students; prize winning quilts, modern and antique, by Mrs. Fred Luther, Mrs. John Roosa, Mrs. James Pirie and a number of others; a project by the scout troop of the church; an exhibit by the youth group under the supervision of Clifford Van Valkenburgh, consisting of skeletons, fossils, fossils, airplanes, boats, stamps and cutlery. Many women of the church will display afghans, crocheted bed spreads, luncheon sets, hooked rugs, weaving, paintings, old glass, shawls, perfume bottles, buttons, dolls, jewelry and miniature animals.

Nelson Smith will exhibit fine wood carvings, which include a reproduction of the First Reformed Church and grounds and the first stage coach to travel from Kingston to Boston. Mrs. Ida Sherman will show pictures which she has collected from all parts of the country numbering about 125. Eugene Prossard's contribution to the exhibit will be a solid silver sugar urn by Joseph Oubois which was made in 1796 and is rare for age and because it represents a short but interesting period. There will be exhibitors from Saugerties, Wallkill, New Paltz, Highland and other surrounding communities.

Marking an Engraved Wedding Invitation

Dear Mrs. Post: I received a wedding invitation with the initials of the bride and bridegroom embossed in white at the top of the page. Wasn't this strange? Answer: Yes, very, but if the invitations were sent by the bride and bridegroom, it would have been entirely proper. If they were sent by the bride's parents, then they were wrong, because the letterhead must represent the senders of the invitation. The initials of the bride's father and nothing else, would have been unsuitable, because too personal to him. However, the single initial of the family surname, made into an attractive device, would have been unusual, but not improper!

Good Taste Today

Mr. and Mrs. Townstore Go On A Vacation

For the first time in their fifteen years of marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Townstore are going to a fashionable mountain resort hotel for a week's stay. Mrs. Townstore explains, "It will be our first experience in a de luxe hotel, and I suppose it is only natural that we should feel a little self-conscious about our lack of knowing how things are done—especially about our car. We understand that there is no parking space at the hotel. We would like to know who will take it to the garage when we arrive, and how do we have it brought to the hotel when we want it to drive around and see places of interest. Do we go down and ask the door-man to telephone and how much do we tip him for this service?"

I will answer this as explicitly as I can in a few words: When you arrive at the hotel, the luggage is taken out by the door-man and one or two bell boys. You then get out alone, and follow your luggage into the lobby. Your husband asks the way to the garage and drives there himself. It is usually a better plan for the owner to go himself than to send the car around without seeing the garage or where his car is being put. Not to do this gives an impression of casual indifference on occasion, and may lead to a rather large number of, perhaps, unwanted items on the bill!

It is also the simplest plan to go and get it, since the garage is probably the one belonging to the hotel, and it won't be more than a few yards away. Or if your husband prefers to have it brought to the hotel door, the simplest thing to do is to call the garage from your room telephone and tell them to have the car sent around at a certain time. Your letter has asked only about the car, but perhaps I should add that you meanwhile either wait in the lobby for a few minutes, or your husband's return, or else you go to the desk, and register, and are shown to your room. Your husband joins you there.

Governor to Pick Evacuation Group For Manhattan

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 10 (AP)—Governor Lehman soon will appoint a committee to draft a program for air-raid evacuation of New York city which may offer a model for the nation's other large municipalities.

A conference of about 70 federal, state and local officials yesterday requested creation of the group and authorized the governor to "cooperate with the governors of other states and with the federal government in effectuating" the plan.

Noting both interstate and intrastate problems would be involved in any New York city evacuation, Lehman stated he would ask executives of bordering states to form organizations similar to the New York committee quickly. "So we can work cooperatively."

The governor's committee will use data on the London program, and Lehman said "we expect to take much less time than the 16 months which England gave to the problem before its first evacuation."

Meanwhile, the legislature's committee on interstate cooperation tentatively drafted two bills to authorize the governor to mobilize and assign paid and volunteer firemen for emergency duty anywhere in the state.

These measures, intended for the 1942 legislature, would make communities liable for harm to equipment of "borrowed" firemen, except the latter from claims for damage resulting during service and provide for use of substitutes in absent firemen's home communities.

Governor Lehman told conferees on the New York city problem "it is my earnest hope, my prayer, that the need for evacuation shall never arise."

"But if such an eventuality should confront us, the task can be executed successfully only if we face the problem now, consider carefully every step which must be taken, every preparation which must be made, and perfect our plan immediately."

OFFICE CAT

By JUNIUS

"The Message of the Flag"
By the Rev. W. J. Thompson, D.D.
The Flag of the U. S. A.
Brings you a message today.
Whatever be your station
If you live in this nation!

Were you born in this great land?
Then the Flag calls—"Take your stand!"
True American be seen.
Keep your country's "Banner clean!"

Have you come across the sea
To this land of liberty?
Then the Flag addresses you—
"To the U. S. A., be true."

There may be some foundation
For the report that the motor car
Is old-fashioned because she still Wears a bonnet.

The motorist had just pulled into the gasoline station for the inevitable gasoline. That being over, the attendant was going through his little ritual.

Attendant—Check the oil, sir?
Motorist—Now, it's O.K.

Attendant—Got enough water in the radiator?

Motorist—Yep, filled up.

Attendant—Anything else, sir?

Motorist—Yes, would you please stick out your tongue so I can seal
this letter!

A Michigan train was wrecked by a motor car. The worm has turned at last.

Another old story that has been revived:

The salesman had worked on Uncle Jeff for hours trying to sell him a car.

Salesman—Now, I'll throw in the clutch (while demonstrating the starting mechanism).
Amos Fash—That I knowed it.
I was plum sure if I waited long enough I'd get sumthin' extra thrown in, be'gosh. Yes, I'll take her.

Shiver, shiver, little car,
How you jerk and shake and jar,
Half the time in the air you stay,
How in the heck do you get that way?

The office grouch has named his second-hand flivver "Congress." It never gets anywhere and costs like the devil to keep it up, explains the grouch.

A big league umpire was visiting here recently and was stopped for running past a boulevard stop sign.

The copper got out his ticket book and started taking down the name.

Officer—You're not—the umpire?

Umpire—Why, yes (a bit pleased to find he was a national figure).

Officer—Go on, then. I went to a game you umpired once and know that you are blind anyway, so how could you see that stop
sign.

Home—A sleeping place near the garage.

We've heard of all kinds of economy records, but the fleeced carburator for genuine old-fashioned saving goes to the elderly couple observed by C K in a restaurant last evening, relaying in the reading of the menu through a single pair of spectacles.

All drivers who sincerely desire to promote safety for themselves and others, and at the same time help to improve the growing traffic problem, can contribute substantially by eliminating "cut-ins" and scrupulously avoiding such turns between intersections both on city streets and rural highways. In a word, "Don't throw a monkey wrench into the works!"
Turn at suitable intersections, or better still, drive around the block.

Grocers and dry goods merchants have to pay for a lot of automobiles they don't own.

That "He Who Hesitates Is Lost" was not written of the wise man who hesitates at railroad crossings.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIEN GREY

Chapter 30

The Lie

PAM turned then to meet the girl's gaze.

"You'll forgive me, I hope," the girl said. "But I just had to come in and look at this tree. It's the most beautiful thing I've ever seen."

Pam smiled. "Most people down here call it the orchid tree," she said sweetly. "I—" and then Pam paused. Something was coming to her with a chill sense of apprehension. Something familiar about the girl that in some vague way knew it was the girl of the beach.
The girl who had waited for Jerry and had walked away with him. It swept over Pam in a chill wave that since that hour Jerry had been different. Not his usual self. She looked at the girl searchingly.

"You were going to say something," May Frisbee prompted.

"Was I?" Pam was confused. It was difficult for her to pretend.

"Yes, you were telling me about this tree," May looked around.
She couldn't let the conversation end there. "And that vine with those lovely flame-colored flowers!"

"That's what it's called," Pam said quietly. "Flame vine. Or, botanically—begonia." And then:
"Won't you sit down?" She indicated the chair beside her, just vacated by Vin.

"Thanks," May dropped into it.
She breathed a little sigh and turned to Pam. "You know, this is the first kindness I've had since arriving in this little hamlet. It almost brings tears, if you know what I mean."

"Surely you haven't found us so unfriendly?" Pam asked gently.
She was trying to think, trying to connect the girl with Jerry. Obviously she wasn't of his set. She couldn't be a relative. It might have been a chance meeting. Occasionally you did walk along with people who stopped you to ask directions, especially in a winter vacation place where living was leisurely.

"Oh, perhaps—May was eager to talk—I'm being unfair in judging the whole town by one man.
My fiancé that was. Had me come down here, and then handed me as well a bunch of air as any balloonist could use."

"I don't understand."
"Turned me down flat, if you need plain English," May said with an excellent imitation of concealed hurt. "What I really suspect is that he's got someone else. But he should have thought of that before he asked me to come down."

"It would seem you've had a raw deal," Pam answered polit-ly. "It hasn't been fair, surely."
"Fair? I'm beginning to think men don't know there is such a word!"

"I'm sorry," Pam said softly.
"And it hurts. I tell you it hurts to have a thing like that handed to you after you've believed in a man." They sat in silence for a while. A mocking bird in the Australian pine looked at them pertly, trying with his own chirpings to urge them to conversation to which he might add his amusing accompaniment. May turned to Pam suddenly and shrugged.

"But why I should be telling you my trouble? You seemed sweet and sympathetic, though."

"Hard Luck Story"
"SOMETIMES it helps to talk," Pam said gently. "I'm sorry you should come here to unhappiness. I always like to think of this island as the place where everyone finds happiness."

"Maybe most people do," May said as she rose. "Maybe I'm just the girl holding the unlucky number."

Pam made no effort to detain her. She wondered why she should be glad when the girl left, but she did have a definite sense of relief.

It was a few days later that Pam had left her room and settled in her car at a drug store. Pam considered a moment and then felt she must speak. This was a sort of Providence-given opportunity.

"Would you mind if I talked to you a minute? she asked of Lenore, who stared at her as if she didn't recognize her, and then said almost insultingly:

"Oh, the little Conch! Did you mean you had something to say to me?"

"Yes," Pam's voice was low with indignation. But Lenore was Jerry's sister. She must do what she could. "It's about Jim Perry."

Lenore continued looking at cards for only a moment, then turned swiftly away.

So that, thought Pam as she walked slowly along Duval Street, was as far as she'd get trying to say anything to Lenore.

Meantime Jerry had been dropping in every day. On the surface, things seemed to be going as usual, but Pam sensed something wasn't right. There was a peculiar tenseness about Jerry,
a moodiness that was new and different.

And then one afternoon when Pam had felt unusually restless and unable to work, she rode out the Boulevard. Parked there, overlooking the water she recognized Jerry's car and had stopped spent Friday in Ellenville calling on old friends.

Mrs. Clifton Geilhardt of Port Chester has been spending a week with her sister, Mrs. Margaret Lane and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Race and daughter, Nancy of Poughkeepsie, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Schaffer.

They were accompanied here by Mrs. Race's father, Joseph Kelb, who had been visiting them for some time.

Miss Marian Rose and Mrs.
Helen Stearns have returned home after enjoying a week's motor trip through northern New York and Canada.

Mrs. Harry Pitts and Mrs. Clara Bryant of Chey Chase, Md. were Saturday guests of Mrs. J. C. Cole and Mrs. Ora Hall at the Wayside Inn.

W. E. Saylor has returned from with one foot on the running board before she saw May.

"Oh, I didn't know—" she began in embarrassment and was about to move on when Jerry stopped
her.

"Pam! Wait, please!" There was something imperative in his voice.
"Oh, you're the girl I was talking to," May Frisbee didn't wait for the introduction Jerry had not intended to give.

"Yes," Pam said and paused,
too startled to say more.
"I've been telling Jerry my troubles," May went on over Jerry's effort to silence her. "Just as if," with a bitter, hard little laugh, "he wasn't the cause of them!"

Pam was glad May rambled on, allowing her silence with which to cover her confusion. Jerry the cause of this girl's troubles? Jerry must be the man she had been talking about that afternoon. Suddenly it all seemed clear to Pam.
Jerry's strangeness of late, his constraint and apparent worry.
His being late for appointments,
his preoccupied manner.

"I've been thrown out of my hotel room," May's words stood out suddenly in Pam's consciousness.

"Thrown out?" Pam echoed.
"Yes, darling," May was laughing. "Hadden't you heard that hotels like to collect their bills?"

"Yes, but—"
"Well, that's what happened to little May!"

"May, it isn't necessary—"
Jerry began, but May ignored him.

"Out in the cold, cruel world with no roof over my head."

"Foolish Offer"
"COME and share my roof," Pam said quietly. "I have plenty of room. You can stay until you get things straightened out. Any friend of Jerry's is welcome." She meant what she was saying to May Frisbee, but she was hurt deeply.

"Pam, you can't do that," Jerry's words cut sharply into May Fris-bee's reply. "You can't have May at your house. I won't have it."
"I like that!" May's voice shook with anger. "Anyway, I've got to go somewhere and my meanness isn't going to cut me out of the one place I can find shelter."

"You don't need shelter. The thing you need is to get out of town and do it fast!"

"With what?"
"No one needs to tell you how to do things, May. You can find more ways to do the things you want to than any other ten women could! For just once in your colorful and adventurous career, do the decent thing—keep out of Pam's home and life. You're wasting time here, anyway."

"Time is one thing I've got plenty of," May said, grinning over her anger.

"There isn't one decent impulse in you, is there?"
"Jerry, please—" Pam's voice was gentle. She was sorry for the girl. She had no understanding of May's type and could think only of how she herself would feel if she suddenly found she had no home.

"Pam—Jerry didn't wait for her to finish—"don't try to argue this out with me. You just haven't any idea of what you're talking about in this particular case. You have no understanding of the situation. May is like no woman you've ever met. She's a complete parasite. You can't have her in your home."

"Don't quarrel, please," Pam said. "There's no reason for it.
My house is large. May can stay there until she gets ready to leave. I want to do that much."

"Pam, please," Jerry begged.
"Why must you be this way?"
"Won't you believe that in just his one instance I know best?
Get on your bike now and roll home, dear May and I will battle this out, and then tonight I'll come see you."

"He's right about part of it, kid," May said to Pam. "You'd better be on your way. Jerry and I will fight this out better alone."

"Yes, please go," Jerry begged gently. "Please, Pam. I can't go to help for you to be here."
She looked at Jerry for a moment, then said quietly:

"But I'll expect you to bring May, Jerry; not to come without her." She was sorry the moment the words were said. There had been a strange change in Jerry's face. But she added: "Don't come without May."

Something about his expression hurt deeply. Besides, she didn't like ultimatums. Had never liked them. They were stupid and unfair.

Pam mounted her wheel and pedaled away. There was nothing further she could do. She was hurt, yet she was sorry for Jerry.
She did not understand the situation. Her experience had never given her a parallel for May Frisbee.

It was well into the evening before anything happened that gave Pam an idea of how things were going. A taxi drove to her door at dusk. May got out and came up the steps.

"Fine way to begin a friendship, by borrowing!" May was laughing. "Could you lend me taxi fare?"

"Surely!" Pam went to her purse and counted out fifty cents.
May had no baggage. The hotel was holding it for her bill.

Tells of Horrors Of War in Poland

Hardships in Lands Dominated by Nazis Related

Mrs. Mary Olizar, who arrived in this country two years ago from Poland, was the guest speaker Thursday night at the assembly of the Boy Scout Troop No. 10 at the Immaculate Conception Church. Mrs. Olizar gave an interesting talk on conditions in Poland today.

The speaker was introduced by Francis Wojciechowski, chairman of Boy Scout Troop 10 and Frank Zaksewski, scoutmaster.

Mrs. Olizar, who speaks Polish, French, Spanish, German and English, told how she escaped through Italy, France, Portugal and then to the United States.

She informed her listeners of the hardship that the people of the Nazi-dominated lands in Europe are going through as a result of the German conquest. She told of her escape past the German soldiers when they invaded Poland September 29, 1939. Also about the burning of Warsaw. Mrs. Olizar was an eye-witness to this destruction.

The former Polish resident went on to add about the robbing of churches, theft of many valuables in these sacred places and the Germans attempt to sell the articles to Spain. The purge of Catholic priests was related by the speaker who said that she had known a few who had been murdered after they had defied the German warnings.

Further destruction that the Germans are waging in the present war was brought to the listeners when Mrs. Olizar told about the machine-gunning of peasants in the fields, burning of buildings of the ground, the starving of the Polish inhabitants. She also told that young boys between the ages of 15 and 18 were forced to dig graves for the dead or else be brought before the firing squad.

The speaker, voicing her own as well as the desire of other Polish citizens, hoped that the war would soon end and that the home land could once again enjoy the freedom it had previously enjoyed.

Over 98 per cent of Alaska is government land.

Proclamation

On October 13, the annual financial campaign of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, will open to raise funds for a program that helps to build stronger, healthier, finer boys—the leaders of tomorrow.

We are in the midst of a world-wide revolution aimed at the destruction of democracy. In our own country attempts have been made, and are still being made, to take us away from the American way into a totalitarian form of government.

The future of America depends to a great extent upon the ideals instilled in the minds of today's youth. Boy Scout fellowship and training help to develop American ideals.

I urge all those who are interested in a fine citizenship and a safer America to generously contribute to the Boy Scout campaign.

U. S. Production Of Tanks Held Up

O. started a union card inspection line outside the gates.

The company's plant there employs 11,000 and fabricates ship-building materials.

Operations Affected

Other shipbuilding operations were affected by a stoppage of work at the Robins Drydock in Brooklyn, N. Y. The C.I.O.'s Marine Workers said 7,000 men quit work protesting against the hiring of two non-union men. Repair work had been in progress on 17 ships.

In Cleveland, O., Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey said C.I.O. officials had rejected a "fair proposition" by the Midland Steel Company to settle an 11-day strike making 7,400 men idle.

The C.I.O. auto workers and company officials had agreed on wage increases of from eight to 13 cents hourly, but that the union would not consent to certain terms concerning the reclassification of jobs and rates.

The company makes motor car frames for the army.

A.F.L. machinists at the bomber plants of the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation in San Diego, Calif., voted to accept a compromise wage proposal which would provide an estimated $600,000 in retroactive wage increases. The firm has 27,000 at work on $750,000 in orders.

Under the compromise the increases would become effective as of August 9. The starting employment scale would be jumped from 55 and 65 cents hourly to 60 and 75 cents, while those now getting more than 65 cents would get a 13 cent raise.

The C.I.O. workers at Air Associates, Inc., Bend, N. J., who have been out since September 30, demanding adjustment of grievances, voted to accept recommendations of the mediation board and sought to go back to work today. They withdrew, however, when informed jobs were available for only a score of the 70 men who were employed.

Second Ward Polling Place

Voters in the second district of the Second Ward on Friday had some difficulty in finding the polling place in that ward. The polling place was formerly in the Wallace garage on South Manor avenue, but this year is located in the new fire station, 325 Foxhall avenue in the rear of the Gellner paint shop. Entrance to the polling place is from Wiltwyck avenue.

Hitler Is Piecing Together New Plan To Provide Peace

to fit his own sentences together to realize that he is willing to give the British a peace offer, on paper, might look fairly attractive.

Eight days ago Hitler chose to say again that he did not blame the bulk of the English people for the war, only Churchill. "His co-agitators" and "international Jewry." The day before he made that speech he told his troops (as it later was disclosed for propaganda purposes) that they could win "the most essential condition for peace" if they smashed Russia in the decisive battle then beginning.

Cascade of Proclamations

Subsequently, in a cascade of proclamations, Hitler had his underlings shout to the world that the battle with Russia was won. Actually, developments of the last few days prove that was not true.

The morning, the Germans have to say, in effect, that they could not do the business of winning it.

It is, therefore, difficult to escape the conclusion that Hitler is conducting a deliberate and grandiose campaign to make the people of Britain (and those of America, too) believe that there is no use trying to sustain Russia any more and it would be better to patch things up before the Germans, fattened by the wealth of all Europe, turn west with all their remaining men, planes and guns.

But this, according to the most reliable indications, is not going to work.

First: Hitler does not know the people of Britain, never did, never will. Second: The British and American statesmen who were in Moscow even while the great German offensive was raging have returned convinced that Russia is not licked and determined not only to provide Russia with supplies but to keep open a way by which they may reach the Red armies.

British Are Preparing

The British themselves appear to be preparing action as an answer to Hitler. This is not likely to take the form of a general western offensive stab at the continent; Britain has neither the ships nor the arms for that, although punishing raids on the French, Dutch or Belgian coasts by the new Commando Corps of tough Tommies, trained in everything from the Australian crawl to Japanese ju jitsu, would not be surprising.

There may also be a tip in the recent lull in heavy bombing of Germany by the R.A.F., broken last night by a big raid on the Ruhr after more than a week of inaction ascribed to "weather." Possibly the weather was bad, but the British are not likely to pay too much attention to it at this critical time. It seems more likely that the ostensible lull was used for a great, general shift in the bomber strength of the British Isles, involving, possibly, a considerable diversion of offensive strength to the Near East, adjacent to Russian borders.

It is very evident that the British are going to put up a real fight to keep open the Persian supply route to the Russians; certainly with planes; possibly with men and tanks.

Gillette Talks With Hull

Washington, Oct. 11 (P)—Senator Gillette (D, Iowa) talked with Secretary of State Hull today about a proposed Senate investigation of the activities of Japanese consular and other agents in the United States, but Hull said afterward there was only an exchange of information. Gillette, with Senator Johnson (D, Colo.), offered a resolution last week calling for an inquiry into reports that agents of Axis powers were organizing non-quota aliens and "dual citizens" into groups hostile to this country.

Grand Jury to Report

A report of the October grand jury which has been in session since the beginning of the month is expected to be made Tuesday afternoon. District Attorney N. LeVan Haver announced this morning. The report of this grand jury will be early this term because of the large number of cases brought before the grand jury in session last month during the September term of county court.

A card party will be held Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock at Mannerchor Hall, 37 Greenkill avenue.

New York, Oct. 11 (P)—Stocks moved along an irregular hypath today, aided by reports of stiff Russian resistance and bedeviled by new defense labor troubles.

The approaching long week-end barred traders from undertaking extensive operations and the short session closed with transactions of only about 200,000 shares recorded.

Of chief concern to those watching industrial prospects was the shutdown of the Spicer plant at Toledo, where vital tank and combat car parts are made, and threats of other labor difficulties.

On the other hand, improvements in airplane production and yesterday's unexpected Curtiss-Wright dividend gave a modicum of action to the aircrafts.

Issues included Curtiss-Wright, United Aircraft, Douglas, Goodyear, J. I. Case, Harvester, Western Union, Kennecott, Johns-Manville and Dow Chemical. Running behind at times were duPont, Owens-Illinois, American Telephone, Phelps Dodge and Texas Corp.

Bonds and commodities followed mixed trends.

RADIO CHART LISTENING POST

by Tom MacPherson

Fourteen volunteers were hypnotized via remote control during last Saturday's Hobby Lobby seasonal debut. Attested to by a bevy of radio columnists, the mass-mesmerizing itself was not broadcast; the subjects were later herded to the mike and exhibited. The swami who performed this feat, a mystic man of the East named Klein, sat in cabalistic solitude and poured his hypnotic powers into a microphone. Off in another room, the volunteer subjects listened, were soon under the Swami's spell. Then, with the columnists confirming each move, the sleeping hypnotees were led to Dave Elman's live mike, where Swami Klein demonstrated how completely each was in his power. With forebodings, we listened to one subject eat a lemon and obediently proclaim it a delicious and sweet peach. Perhaps the implication was muffed by our colleagues present, but we are left a-tremble before the possibility of the Swami being sponsored.

With jollity and laughter bursting out at his seams, Fred Allen squeezes out some all-important gags. Fred finds it imperative to have his quips neatly planned and timed so he can properly ignore them as he ad libs through his Wednesday night hour.

If you read the Satevepost's reprinted passages from "Big Family"—or if you are the best-seller-friend who beat me to the circulating library—tune in WABC at three o'clock Tuesday. Author Bellamy Partridge, appearing on "Of Men and Books", will reveal whether he relied on personal recollections or delved into histories.

Middies Meet Po'keepsie Today, Point for Friday's Contest With K.H.S. Here

Middletown Seeks First Win Over Kalkochmen Since '37; Coach Changes Backs

After this afternoon's non-DUSO League engagement with Poughkeepsie High School at Wilson Field in Middletown, Coach Johnny Bateman's Middies will start preparations for next Friday night's contest with Kingston at municipal stadium. The game is scheduled for 8 o'clock, a half hour earlier than the first ardent attraction with Amsterdam.

Middletown, a pre-season favorite to win the league title this season, will not be an easy foe for either the Bridge City eleven or the Maroon and White forces. After losing their opener to Ossining a few weeks ago, Coach Bateman has been giving his athletes plenty of work.

Poughkeepsie Favorites
Coach Sammy Kalloch's representatives, on their performance against Port Jervis last week, will enter today's clash as the favorites. The Poughkeepsie club scored two touchdowns in the last seven minutes of play against the Redlegs and displayed plenty of power.

The Middies, incidentally, will seek their first triumph over the Kalkochmen since 1937. That year a highly favored Middletown team only beat Poughkeepsie 14 to 7. In 1938 the Kalkochmen romped over Middletown 28 to 0. In 1938 it was 6 to 6, last year Poughkeepsie won 19 to 7.

Getting back to the Middletown-Kingston encounter finds interest still mounting for the game here, next Friday night under the lights.

Kingston's power, although tested in but two games, is more or less known by its followers. Middletown, on the other hand, faces a task both tomorrow and next Friday to show its true colors and power.

Realizing that his team has two tough engagements in successive weeks, Coach Johnny Bateman has been giving his athletes some lengthy training in preparation for the two battles. The Middle coach has been doing some switching, too, in his backfield.

Fred Schild, who has been working in the number one back position, may go to number four or plunging back when Middletown plays Kingston next week. Schild, a veteran DUSO competitor, has proved beyond a doubt that he can hit the line and really carry the pigskin. With this change, Tony Goebe, one of the best ball carriers in the loop last year, will move to the number three slot and still do the club's passing and punting. Frank Belotto will then switch to number one berth vacated by Schild.

"This," said Bateman, "will give the team better balance. I'm a little undecided about the blocking or number two position. However, Joe Bearisio or Harry Myers will probably get the ball to work there when we meet Kingston Friday night at the stadium in the Colonial City."

As for Schild's plunging ability, it was developed purely by experimentation. "Freddie," declared Coach Bateman, "is the fastest back of the 10 on my first stringers and loses no time getting through a hole. You might also look out for Jonah DeGroat who also has shown plenty of spirit in our drills." Bateman went on to add this, "I'm sure our first string backs will show Kingston plenty of stuff when the teams meet."

Today's contest between Middletown and Poughkeepsie which will probably be attended by many Kingston fans, as well as high school coaches and players, may still mount for the game here, next Friday night under the lights.

Kingston's power, although tested in but two games, is more or less known by its followers. Middletown, on the other hand, faces a task both tomorrow and next Friday to show its true colors and power.

Rides 6 of 7 Winners

Jockey Alfred Robertson, 30-year-old Scotch riding star, weighs in after booting home one of his six winners on the seven-race card at Jamaica, N. Y. Other jockeys have ridden six winners in one day, but Robertson became the first to turn the trick twice—the first time in February, 1928, at Havana, during his first year in the saddle.

Down and Out

Chicago — Frank Dubbell, 56, says he doesn't remember much what happened after he lost his balance while standing on a chair.

The police theory was that Dubbell put a chair on his bed and climbed on it to reach a box on a shelf. He lost his balance, crashed through a window and screen, nosedived two stories, smacked against a fence and landed on a pile of bricks in the adjoining yard. Doctors said he would recover.

Cigarette paper is now produced in this country in large volume from domestically grown flax straw, the Department of Commerce says.

BOWLING

Mercantiles Will Not Enter A.B.C. Circuit This Year

Break Is First in Six Years; Herb Whitaker Resigns His Position as Committeeman

Howard Shurter, president of the Y. M. C. A. Mercantile Bowling League, has given the Kingston Bowling Association, word that his league will not affiliate with the A. B. C. for the 1941-42 season. It is the first break in the six-year A. B. C. record.

Under the A. B. C. regulations, all members of the Mercantile League automatically become ineligible to compete in other sanctioned leagues of the city association. Charles Tiano, the K. B. A. secretary, was instructed to notify other secretaries. Under the same ruling, all bowlers appearing in sanctioned leagues are prohibited from taking part in the Y. M. C. A. loop.

It also was announced last night that Herb Whitaker, executive committeeman from Saugerties on the A. B. C. had resigned. Mr. Whitaker declared that he could not devote the necessary time to the position and requested that he be relieved of his duties.

The Freeman and Electrol Bowling leagues were declared official bowling circuits and as such, are eligible for affiliation with the American Bowling Congress. An invitation will be extended to each loop.

Despite the fact that the Mercantile League has decided to withdraw from the A. B. C. the alleys at that establishment have been resurfaced for the season, thus assuring high score awards for any sanctioned league that decides to use them for home alleys.

Sweden May Back Films
Sweden is considering a proposal to subsidize locally produced films, particularly those of cultural or social significance, it is reported in Stockholm. A five-man committee investigating the most suitable method of government aid has been asked to express a preference for either direct aid or a revival of the amusement tax. The committee will also consider forms of aid given film industries in other countries.

An effort is being made in China to popularize new seeds and farming methods, according to the Department of Commerce.

Yellow Jackets Will Play Bronx Spartans on Sunday Afternoon at City Stadium

The Gilly Side Sport

AP Feature Service

Fayetteville, Ark.—Arkansas' Razorbacks aren't figured to do too well in the Southwest Conference this year but Coach Fred C. Thomsen, with a chuckle, opines his team may spring some surprises "if our opponents don't use 17 players against us like they did in 1937."

The story is that, after the Rice Owls defeated Arkansas in a last-minute affair in 1937, Thomsen asked his linemen one by one, how Ernie Lain and Olie Cordell had been able to smash through them for consistent gains. Each lineman made the same statement: "Two men got me."

The defensive fullback, who had backed up the line, offered the same alibi.

"Well," said Thomsen, "that explains it. Two men each on eight of you is sixteen men—and they had a ball-carrier besides. No wonder they beat us. We were playing against 17 men!"

Birmingham—South Carolina's colorful halfback of the '30's, Earl Clary, is the subject of a number of amusing football stories, but one of the best concerns his appearance with the Gamecocks against Auburn here. Figured to be pushovers for the strong Auburn crew, South Carolina had surprised everyone by making it a ding-dong battle. With time left for but a single play, Carolina's ball deep in Auburn territory, and the Gamecocks in a huddle, the situation was tense.

Clary, in the center of the excited South Carolina huddle, looked up only at a scoreboard at the far end of the field and exclaimed: "Holy smokes! Army's got Notre Dame 7-0!"

Then the Gamecocks lined up, the ball went back to Clary, and he ran it over for a touchdown. The point after was good and the game ended 20-0.

Richmond, Va.—Reverse plays aren't confined to the playing field in modern football. They're telling about a coach in the Southern Conference who learned that an eastern school was having a promising freshman at the southern institution. So the conference coach sent word, through the boy's family, that the talented youngster had enrolled at another Southern Conference institution in a different state. The coach heard later that a representative of the eastern school had been seen on the campus of the second Southern Conference college for several days with a puzzled expression on his face.

Atlanta—It was near the end of the 1941 Southern Association season and felix Paul Richards, manager of the league-leading Atlanta crackers, became enraged at Umpire Bob Kober.

"You're an egotistical son-of-a-bitch," he screamed. "I'm going to look that up in the dictionary when I get to the hotel," retorted Kober. "and if it means what I think it means, I'm recommending a $50 fine for you."

Richards pondered a moment, then said: "It doesn't mean what you think it does."

Name Backs Forced to Move Over by Young Substitute

Hearne, 155-Pound Back on Southern Eleven

Races 109 Yards for Touchdown

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Big name backs like Andy Tomasic of Temple, Frank Sinkwich of Georgia and Junie Hovious and Merle Hapes of Mississippi, had to move over today and make room on the heroes bench for little Bill Hearne, 155-pound substitute back on the Union College (Kentucky) eleven.

Playing against Transylvania last night, Hearne caught a kickoff nine yards behind his own goal line and sprinted 109 yards for his club's only points in Transylvania's 55 to 6 triumph.

Georgia Triumphs
Phantom Frank Sinkwich, with his broken jaw held in place by a special brace, was in the Georgia lineup only intermittently but sparked the bulldogs to a last period touchdown that brought them a 14 to 14 tie with Mississippi in a Southeastern Conference game.

Another substitute back, Tony Vantresca, helped Lebanon Valley pile up three touchdowns in the first period and his mates went 13 to 0.

University of California at Los Angeles, polished off by Stanford, 33 to 0, only last week, came back to down Montana, 14 to 7, while Idaho gave Coach Francis Schmidt his first triumph, beating Gonzaga, 21 to 7. Texas Tech made the long trip to Los Angeles and blanked Loyola, 14 to 0.

'Turkey' Thompson's Fans Have Scored Moral Victory

Admirers Force Boxing Commission to Make New Rulings on Future Bouts

Los Angeles, Oct. 11 (AP)—Albert (Turkey) Thompson couldn't whip Big Abe Simon of New York the other night, but his hometown admirers scored a moral victory.

They forced the State Athletic Commission, Southern California Chapter, to admit that Mr. and Mrs. Gus Fan, from any seat in a boxing arena, can refer to a fight better than any referee paid by the commission to do the job.

The local commission members, the noise of the "Thompson was robbed" section still ringing in their ears, adopted another—and slightly used—policy for future use.

Hereafter, boxing referees will be equipped not only with a score card, pencil, grey slacks and a police escort, but with two ringside advisory judges as well.

These judges will be selected from "persons interested in boxing." This includes boxing writers and patrons presumably of the regular and consequently expert variety.

From this latter list then can be drawn such regular—and expert—advisory judges as Lupe Velez, the Ritz brothers (all three) and the tall, dark-haired man with horn-rimmed glasses who yells "they're ice cold, folks, they're ice cold!"

Someone said his name was Rafferty, and it could be. Lupe recently swore off "istic fanatics—her public raved and ranted at the undignified manner in which she raved and ranted at winter sports second.

Local Gridders Will Be After First Victory of Season; Game at 2:30 P. M.

The Kingston Yellow Jackets will tangle with the powerful and highly-regarded Bronx Spartans at municipal stadium Sunday afternoon in their first day contest of the year. Game time is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

A foe of local semi-pro teams of other years, the Spartans will be far from an unknown quantity. In other years when these two clubs met, the grid fans saw plenty of top-notch skirmishes.

Last Sunday afternoon the Bronx Spartans met and defeated the Newburgh Recreation in the Hilly City by 13 to 12. That alone makes the Spartans as a team to watch. The Hilly City gridgers have one of their best balanced teams this season and a victory over them means that the winner must have something up its sleeve.

In one game this year the Jackets were defeated by 6 to 0, the defeat being administered by the Amsterdam Rough Riders last Wednesday night at the stadium. The lack of experienced material was in evidence as the local gridgers tried vainly to stop the onslaught of the upstarts.

Since the contest, the Wasps have had a little time to think things out and now hope for the best Sunday. The Jackets will have to be at their best tomorrow afternoon to cope with this Spartan eleven.

A slim turnout of patrons filed into the stadium Wednesday night to see the Jackets play. After the contest it was decided to abandon hope of continuing the night attractions. It was further agreed to test the Sunday afternoon games. Tomorrow's grid battle will undoubtedly decide the future of the club.

The lineups for the game:

Bronx Spartans Van Derzee
LT—Wood Eubie
LG—Cataldo F. Bauer
C—Quinn DeGraff
RG—Santelli Dr. Craft
RT—Miskin Cheney
RE—Corby Merzel
QB—McGuire Esposito
LHB—Eberhart Sikorski
RHB—Packard Stoll
FB—Stratton Marone
